We Need To Organize A Carmel Valley History Society

Formation of a Carmel Valley History Society is long overdue. Our old-time residents are rapidly passing from the scene. If we don't do something about it now, valuable memories and mementos of early days in the valley will be lost forever.

If you are interested in preserving the history of Carmel Valley, please take the time to fill out and send us the adjacent coupon. The Sun will collate responses to help interested members of the community get together for an organizational meeting.

The functions that we see for a Carmel Valley History Society include:

- Develop an oral history program to videotape our long-time residents talking about early days in the valley.
- Promote the writing of books and brochures about valley history, or with stories about the life and times of early settlers in the valley.
- Collect and store early photographs and artifacts of historical interest.
- Prepare small exhibits for display at community meeting centers and major inns and lodges.
- Provide speakers to community organizations and hold public meetings to promote knowledge of local history.

Consciousness of a shared history is an important element of community identity. Most valley residents have moved here from elsewhere, and there is no easy way for them to learn the lore and the lessons of our past. Available reading on valley history is very limited. Our history does not compare with that of Monterey or Carmel, but it is interesting nonetheless. And it's OURS, so we should preserve it and cherish it.

Golden Eagle Shows Up For Annual Bird Count

by Dick Heuer

The early bird gets the worm, and the early birder gets to watch him eat it. At dawn on December 29, this reporter joined one of fifteen Audubon Society teams for the annual Monterey Peninsula Christmas bird count.

In the first hour, we logged 24 different species in the area along the Carmel River at the end of Dorris Drive in Mid-Valley. The highlight came a bit later — a Golden Eagle soaring above San Carlos Ranch. By sundown, our team had observed 65 different bird species.

The Christmas Count on the Peninsula dates back to 1900. Similar bird counts are now held at the same time in about 1,450 locations in North America. The local count is limited to a circular area within 7.5 miles of Jacks Peak. This year, 62 persons identified 183 different species and tabulated over 41,000 birds.

Golden Eagle

Three teams assigned to Carmel Valley spotted a combined 108 species. These are listed in a separate article. Our team had the middle segment from Robinson Canyon to Rancho Canada. Other teams covered the areas from Rancho Canada to the ocean and from Robinson Canyon to Country Club Drive and up to the top of Laureles Grade.

Our team leader, Tim Crisler, who lives on Miramonte and works at the Nature Company in Carmel, has been hooked on birding since fourth grade, when his teacher taught science by taking the class on weekly nature walks. Other team members were Susan McDonald and Wendy Kimber, who live on Ridge Way and operate Property Services, a landscaping and residential gardening company, and Sandie Shaver, a visitor from Southern California.

On the Cal-Am property at the end of Dorris Drive, our best finds were two Great Blue Herons, a Downy Woodpecker, and Double-crested Cormorants flying up-river; Yellow-rumped Warblers were common. Walking back along Berwick Drive was a good spot for Mockingbirds and Anna's Hummingbird. A Black Phoebe was perched on the Safeway roof, and White-crowned Sparrows darted among the bushes in the shopping center parking lot.

From Robinson Canyon Road bridge, we observed two Snowy Egrets and five Greater Yellowlegs enjoying the cool river water, plus two Kingfishers and an Acorn Woodpecker.

Little luck was had among the redwoods in Robinson Canyon. Much earlier, in the darkness of night, a different team had observed four owl species there. Emerging on the grassy uplands, we flushed a large flock of Meadowlark and the entire area teemed with bird life. The 45 power zoom lens on Crisler's Bushnell Spacemaster telescope was critical for making firm identifications at a distance.

In addition to the Golden Eagle, we saw our first Red-tailed and Red-shouldered Hawks here, Flickers, Steller Jays, three species of finches, several different warblers, Western Bluebirds, and a variety of other small species. The usual water birds were on the pond at San Carlos Ranch, with an impressive Great Blue Heron looking for gophers nearby. One of the best finds of the day was a lone Lewis' Woodpecker in a roadside tree.

On the ponds at Quail Lodge and Rancho Canada were Pied-billed Grebe, Bufflehead, Pintail, Golden-eye, Ruddy and Ringneck Ducks, in addition to the common Mallard and the many Coots.

To seek out a woodland habitat, we drove up into Carmel Views, parked at the end of Outlook Drive, then hiked north on a trail through the pine forest. A group of Cedar Waxwings passed overhead and we heard a Bewick's Wren, but otherwise there was little activity. On the way back, we finally discovered a group of three pines where most of the little birds had congregated. Here were our first Townsend's Warblers, a rare Hermit Warbler, Titmouse, Chickadees, Ruby-crowned Kinglet, and Red-breasted Nuthatch.

Over lunch, our team reflected on the satisfaction they receive from birding. Susan McDonald opined

Monterey County Holds Bird Count Records

Because of its wide variety of habitats easily accessible by car, Monterey County holds the North American record for the most bird species (202) observed in a single day (May 1, 1982). Also, more species (116) have been observed during a single day (October 31, 1982) from a single spot (a hill overlooking Elkhorn Slough) than from any other spot in North America.

These figures are from the book Monterey Birds, by Don Roberson, which was published last year under sponsorship of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society. The book is a comprehensive report on which birds are found where, at what time of year, and how commonly in Monterey County.

VALLEY HISTORY

The Carmel Valley Ranch School

Courtesy Monterey County Planning Dept.

Nestled among the Sierra del Salinas of the upper Camrel Valley is the site of the former Carmel Valley Ranch School, founded by Helen Lisle and Celinea ''Bunny'' Wells. Miss Wells and Miss Lisle were school teachers from New England with an innovative approach to teaching. Their idea was to start an eastern private school on a western ranch.

The plan was for the school to run from October to May, with the teachers accompanying the students by train from the east to California and back, allowing for special stops along the way, with the routes varying throughout the northern and southern United States. The parents liked this program because of the travel education it provided the children.

The first school site was located near the present-day Carmel Valley Manor, but in 1929, a new location was found. Mr. Russell Hastings had just purchased a ranch in Upper Carmel Valley. Through a fortunate set of circumstances, he became aware that the teachers were looking for a new school site and offered them any site they wanted on his ranch at the price he paid for it: $30 per acre.

Bunny and the children traveled to the Hastings Ranch and rode around to find a spot for the school. They purchased a 16 acre site near an existing barn. At this time, there were twelve children attending the school.

After the site was selected, the teachers hired Mr. Comstock to design the house that was to be used for the school. They wanted a New England style design so that the children would feel at home in their new surroundings. Bunny felt that it was not the most perfect example of a New England home; Mr. Comstock, on the other hand, felt that an eastern design was quite out of place and that they should use a design that reflected the Mexican heritage of the area. The school was constructed by 18 carpenters in one summer!

Each year the teachers interviewed students before admitting them and then made the trip from Massachusetts to the Del Monte Station by train. The school children were isolated in Massachusetts for two weeks prior to the trip because of whooping cough and other contagious childhood diseases. At the school the same was true: they were isolated from local children because of the fear of childhood disease.

The school leveled off with 16 students, eight boys and eight girls, averaging from 9 to 12 years of age, with the girls being somewhat older than the boys to allow more equal participation in sports. It was meant to be a preparatory school, but some students stayed through the second year of high school. Two male and two female college counselors attended the students.

The school had resident teachers that provided instruction in French, music, and art, among other things. Each child had a horse: riding was used as a tool to build discipline, instill confidence and encourage good studies. The school had such an excellent reputation that its students were accepted into Andover and Milton, two of the finest preparatory schools, without pre-admission testing.

The school closed in 1941. The two teachers were exhausted from the full day it took to run the school. They also felt that they had done it for long enough and it was time for something new: chinchilla farming!; but that's another story altogether.

Ms. Wells, a native of Massachusetts, resides at Carmel Valley Manor. The former school site and buildings are owned by the University of California and are used in conjunction with the research that takes place at the Hastings Natural History Reservation.

SUPERVISOR'S REPORT

by Karin Strasser Kauffman
5th District Supervisor

1987: A Year Of Promise

Happy New Year! From the County perspective. 1986 was a productive year in Carmel Valley politics. Our Board of Supervisors reviewed a new, detailed Environmental Impact Report and was able, finally, to approve a Carmel Valley Master Plan to guide us through the next twenty years. With an initial hearing date scheduled for January 16th, we now await the Court's response.

1986 also saw the beginning of a planning process for the Cachagua region, another area plan which should be completed during this year. Throughout the year, the Valley was able to maintain three separate, efficient fire districts, with strong volunteer effort. Our fledgling Park and Recreation District in the Village continued, actively supported by County funds, and our Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce successfully received a round of grants from both the economic Development and the Tourism Funds distributed by the Board of Supervisors. I am pleased to have been able to help on these efforts—and am very proud of the programs developed this past year by our Valley.

At this time, I want to express my deep appreciation to the many local residents who are serving on our various County boards and commissions in an advisory capacity. It often is difficult for me to choose from the pool of interested, talented applicants who volunteer fo fill slots on the Social Services Commission, the Fish and Game Commission, the Alcoholism Advisory Board, different County Service areas, or the Carmel River Advisory Commitee—to name just a few! Without the enthusiastic dedication of these appointees, I know I could not be half as effective in serving you. My thanks to all for your good advice and hard work.

Throughout this coming year, I plan to use this column to answer the most frequently asked questions brought to me on Valley-wide issues — issues such as Rosie's Bridge, health concerns, traffic problems (or solutions) zoning questions, land use issues, and, sometimes, neighborhood disputes. I welcome your candor in discussing such matters so openly with me wherever we meet: the grocery counter, the Little League Park, or at my office. Please continue to keep me alerted to your conerns.

I look forward to 1987 with great anticipation, and remain grateful for the opportunity to represent you in Salinas. To each of my constituents: happiness, health, and prosperity in the year ahead!

Yesterday, on January 6, in the Supervisors' Chambers at the Salinas Court House, 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman was selected as Chair of the Board of Supervisors for 1987. We congratulate Supervisor Strasser Kauffman and wish her a successful year.

Jo Lomanto Is 1987 CV Chamber President

Jo Lomanto, Manager of Bank of America's Carmel Valley Branch, was elected president of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce for the coming year. Also elected are Dr. Steven Austin, Carmel Valley Family Dental Care Center, 1st Vice President; Paul Brocchini, The Pewter Shop and Prestige Properties, 2nd Vice President; Sidney Sue Slade, Green & Slade, CPAs, Secretary, and Lois Lamar, Western Title Insurance, Treasurer. Outgoing president Sal Nicita will remain on the Board of Directors as past president.

All officers will be installed at the Chamber's Annual Installation Dinner Dance at Rancho Canada on January 17th.

Ms. Lomanto has been with Bank of America for over 25 years. She has served the Chamber in several capacities, including Treasurer and 1st Vice President, and chaired the Chamber's successful 1985 Fun in the Sun event.

"It is important for the Chamber to be deeply involved in the community it serves," she said. "I want to keep an annual event, like Fun in the Sun, going because each year it will grow so that it will be something people will look forward to attending."

Ms. Lomanto wants to see "more public participation" in Chamber sponsored events, particularly the monthly luncheons. She intends to maintain a "good clanedar of luncheon guests" so that members of the community will want to participate.

The president-elect is looking forward to "another good Membership Drive" in March or April of 1987. She sums up her straightforward philosophy in a few words: "The more businesses that become members, the more members we will have. Than, we will have more expertise on which to draw, and, then, the more we can do for the community."

Jo Lomanto

Community service is her watchword, and she sees the Chamber taking a leadership role in the community, particularly in bringing items of interest to the public.

Jo Lomanto perceives her upcoming term as president of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce as "challenging and exciting. I am looking forward to a good year."

Big Sur Redwood Grove Protected By Easement Donation

A conservation transaction recently completed by The Big Sur Land Trust protects a 5 acre grove of redwoods, thanks to a conservation easement donated by Big Sur landowner, Lowt Vanderveen. The easement restricts the future use of the land, as specified by Mr. Vanderveen, so that no removal of trees or structural development will ever occur. This protected grove is adjacent to another Land Trust easement of over 18 acres of redwoods on the Santa Lucia Ranch donated in 1981 by the late William Hudson.

A conservation easement is a legal document which sets forth restrictions on the use and development of a parcel of land. The flexibility of this land protection tool enables the specific restrictions to be tailored to the conservation requirements of the particular property and to the desires of the landowner.

An easement dedicated in perpetuity qualifies as a charitable gift that will reduce federal and state income taxes and federal estate taxes, as long as the easement meets the requirements of federal and state laws.

Land subject to a conservation easement remains in private ownership and is still on the tax rolls. Such land can be sold and bequeathed, but subsequent owners are bound by restrictions in the easements.

Conservation easements protect more than 1.7 million acres of natural land resources in the United States. Easements have been used in all but four states and by some 500 non-profit organizations and government agencies.

With this easement The Big Sur Land Trust has completed 30 conservation transactions since 1978, preserving 5,763 acres on the Big Sur Coast and the Monterey Peninsula by working professionally and confidentially with landowners.

We sincerely thank Mr. Vanderveen and the other landowners who have selected conservation easements and The Big Sur Land Trust to bring about the preservation of these important natural resources.

As a community non-profit organization, the Land Trust depends upon voluntary membership contributions for the continuance of its work.

County Commission On The Status Of Women Will Honor 10 Outstanding Women As Part Of Women's History Month

The Monterey County Commission on the Status of Women is coordinating Women's History Month 1987 activities throughout the County. This year, Women's History is celebrated for the entire month of March. A major event in the month-long celebration is the naming of ten most outstanding women in Monterey County.

The Commission is actively seeking nominations for the Outstanding Women Awards from individuals, women's clubs and organizations, service clubs, and businesses. Nomination forms are available in both English and Spanish at the Carmel Valley Library and at other libraries throughout the County.

All nominations must be received by the Commission not later than January 25. A Selection Committee will meet to consider the merits of each application and then present their recommendations to the Commissioners.

A reception will be held on March 22nd for the ten County women who will be honored. For more information, please call the Commission at 372-7662.

Vandalism In Village; Juveniles Sought

On the night of December 30, after the stores and restaurants in Carmel Valley Village had closed for the night, several juveniles roamed on foot through part of the Village tearing down and smashing Christmas lights, wiring, and a new store sign. Spotted by a Carmel Valley resident who drove past the area on her way home and promptly called the Sheriff's office, the young vandals nevertheless have not been apprehended at this writing.

"They tried to pull our new sign down, but left it dangling by one of its hinges," said an angry Kathie McCrary of Village Business Services. "The sign has been up for only a few weeks, but now it needs to be repaired and repainted."

Kathie McCrary, Village Business Service, points to sign damaged by vandals on Dec. 30.

She estimated that the repairs and new paint would cost between $75 and $100. "I'd like to see these kids take the responsibility for what they've done," McCrary said, "It's a very traumatic experience.

The Oak Deli also had Christmas lights and wires pulled down and smashed, as did Carmel Valley Floors. Oak Deli and Carmel Valley Floors are on either side of Village Business Services.

The vandalism in the Village appeared to be the culmination of a night of Christmas light breaking by the juveniles involved. The Sheriff's log reports a call from a Village area resident who reported seeing two juveniles running away from her house, and found that her Christmas tree lights were gone as were the lights on a neighbor's house. Shortly thereafter, the motorist who reported seeing the actual vandalism in the Village called the Sheriff. The juveniles were gone before the Sheriff's vehicle arrived.

Christmas tree lights pulled down by vandals hang in front of door at Carmel Valley Floors. Smashed bulbs are on ground.

Sheriff's Deputy David Luna is in charge; but as this is written, no arrests have been made nor have any suspects been taken into custody. Deputy Luna said that his investigation is continuing.

Urges Salvage Of Ubran Creek Bill

Dear Editor,

We urgently need to get word to Eric Seastrand, author of the Urban Creeks Bill, to salvage the bill. The governor has severely cut the Urban Creeks budget to only $150,000, although there has been overwhelming support throughout the state and especially here at our local level. Our river needs these funds, as do many other deserving projects in the state.

There is ample money in the Environmental License Plate fund which could be utilized.

Help our river, please, just send a short note to Assemblyman Eric Seastrand, 1012 Mill Street, San Luis Obispo, CA 93401, asking him to do all in his power to help restore funds to the new Urban Creeks budget.

Relaxation Classes Return To Community Center

Because of the success of last semester's Monday class, Relaxation and Self/Massage classes will be offered Monday and Wednesday this Spring at the Carmel Valley Community Center.

The classes are sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula College Adult Education Program, and a minimum of fifteen participants is required.

Sidney Leah Angel will teach the classes which include relaxation exercises, stretching, and self-massage.

Classes will run from 10 a.m. to noon. Classes began on January 5 and will continue through June 3, 1987.

Information may be obtained by calling the Community Center at 659-3983 between 9 a.m. and noon.

FROM CACHAGUA/JAMESBURG

Getting Involved In The Planning Process

by Kathy R. Kepford

As an appointed member of the Upper Valley (Cachagua) Advisory Committee, I would like to briefly discuss the importance of this committee and the reasons for constructive citizen involvement. An area plan is not just building and zoning regulations; it is the local constitution for any given area. A plan addresses spiritual, physical, aesthetic, and monetary values. While federal and state laws protect personal rights, area plans protect community rights and future land/resource use. An area plan is a statement of purpose; zoning is the implementation of that purpose and, therefore, must comply with the plan.

The Cachagua area is large and has a low population density. It extends from Sleepy Hollow, outside Carmel Valley Village, to this side of the Arroyo Seco turnoff on the way to Greenfield. The boundary includes the southern side of Mt. Toro to the northern slope of the Ventana Double Cones and Uncle Sam Mountain. One third of the planning area is in the National Forest, and another third is in ranching. Included in the area is the Los Padres Dam and a portion of the San Clemente Dam. Any future dam would be in the Cachagua planning area.

Residential areas include Sleepy Hollow, Willow Creek, Cachagua (Sky Ranch, Prince's Camp, Pack Station) and Jamesburg.

During this formative stage of the plan, it is important to have local input. There are historical sights that must be identified and considered in the planning process. Historical preservation can be advantageous to the land owner as well as serving as a link to past community life.

The advisory committee currently is working on a questionnaire for Cachagua residents. Readers should be aware that, of the five areas of Monterey County already past this planning state, none has had a population small enough to obtain individual statistical input. The questionnaire will tell the committee what residents want for the area and will give the committee some specific numbers so that we can defend any policy set by the local committee to the County Planning Department and the Board of Supervisors. Residents receiving the questionnaire are asked to answer the questions and return it as soon as possible.

Residents wishing to participate in the planning process can be considered for a sub-committee position by letting the committee know of our interest and concern. Non-residents are welcome to attend the open public meetings.

In approximately six months, there will be an area plan. Seven people are working on the local "Constitution." Residents of the area covered by the plan are encouraged to attend the public meetings that are held on the first and third Mondays at the Cachagua Volunteer Fire House at 7 p.m.

May I say, in closing, that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, the Planning staff, and you, the taxpayer, have gone to great lengths and expense to select and form a fair advisory committee. There will be a Cachagua Area Plan developed with or without resident participation. A year from now will be too late. Concerned citizens living within the areas covered by the area plan are not only welcome to give their input and attend meetings, but are urged to become constructively involved.

Randy Randazzo Talks About A Sense Of Community

by Grace Darcy

If you've lived in Carmel Valley for any length of time, you know Randy Randazzo. You may not always shop at his Carmel Valley Market, but that doesn't mean that you don't know him. You see, Randy isn't just a businessman; he's an active part of the Carmel Valley Community. His last public appearance was as Grand Marshal of the Santa Fly-In Parade. He rode his horse, a long-time friend with the aplomb of an experienced equestrian. Randy's name conjures up different images for different people.

The Kiwanians see him as a long-time member and supporter. The Chamber of Commerce values him as the recipient of one of its Good Egg Awards and as a former Board member. The members of the Recreation and Park Board look to him for leadership as the newly elected president of that important organization, and the people at the Community Center see him as a benefactor, supporter, and friend.

My most vivid personal recollection of Randy Randazzo gave me an entirely different picture of a man I knew only slightly, but thought of in the limited sense of a local businessman. I had an errand at the Community Center, and as I returned to my car, I passed a man on his hands and knees, busily putting in some much-needed curbing in front of the building. He was alone, and the broad smile on his face assured me that he was indeed having a very good time, even though the job was difficult and he worked in an uncomfortable position. The man was, of course, Randy Randazzo. We chatted for a few moments, he and I, and then we both resumed our day's duties. I recalled this incident to Randy. He remembers and smiles as he quips, "I always enjoyed working with rock."

Horace "Randy" Randazzo is one of a rare breed, a native Californian. Born and raised in Monterey, he has been in the grocery business for almost all his working life. "As a kid, I worked for my uncle delivering milk," he recalls. "I was up at 3 a.m. and finished my route in time for the start of school at 9 a.m.

Randy worked for Purity, a small chain of groceries in Northern California, where he spent 25 years, including the management of Purity stores in Los Gatos and Soledad. "They taught me all about the grocery business," he says. "You don't realize how much you absorb."

"I've never been lazy," he says, "but I have always found a shortcut because, after all, time is money. I learned from each manager I worked for."

Randy Randazzo believes that today's youngsters need to keep their ears and eyes open. "They can pick up jewels of information that will serve them well in later life, if they pay attention."

If ever a cheering section was organized for Carmel Valley, Randy would be its leader. He loves it here. "It was not until I moved here that I became involved with anything but my job," he says. "Carmel Valley has been very good to me. I have felt so at home here that I was determined to put some of myself back into the community."

His particular love is the Community Center. "Anything that goes on there is precious to me. The Center is an asset to the community; something in which we all should take pride."

Randy's new position as president of the Carmel Valley Recreation and Park Board is a challenge. No newcomer to the concept of parks and recreation, Randy received the coveted Layman's Award for Parks and Recreation from the Regional Park Board a while back, an award he particularly cherishes. He sees the coming year as one of change and growth for the Recreation and Park District.

"There are plans for this year for possible expansion of the existing Carmel Valley Park (next to the Community Center)," he says. "This is a dream that the Community Center Board and the new District have been working on for the past year and a half."

Progress has been slow because of red tape and the fact that public money is involved and must be accounted for. Randy "hopes (the District) will shortly be able to negotiate equitable terms for the expansion of the existing park."

If the future is bright with promise for a better Carmel Valley, then surely Randy Randazzo must have some thoughts and ideas about the many changes his beloved Valley has gone through over the years. He remains the optimist.

"The changes I have seen in the past ten years have been slow and gradual," he says. "Because of the concern of our people, the community has grown slowly—growth has been controlled. Now we have a Master Plan and, although some may not agree with all of it, at least we have guidelines that we all can live with. I believe in limited, controlled growth."

Randy believes that the Master Plan will keep growth under control so that it will be slow, as in the past ten years. "We won't grow so quickly that we'll be frightened by it. I think it will be a comfortable growth."

Randy has no thought of retiring at the present time. "I had an opportunity to sell the store, and even thought I wanted to, but I chickened out," he grins. "Carmel Valley has played such an important part in my life that, if I did retire from the grocery business, I would have to get into something that would take just as much of my time."

In a life filled with highlights, what is the best remembered, the most cherished highlight? Randy leans back in his chair in the small office in the rear of the Market and points to a picture. "Without a doubt, it was the ribbon cutting that announced to the public that they had a Community Center," he says, a faraway look of remembering crossing his face. The picture shows three men, Randy, Chuck Bosso, and Dr. John Von Berg holding the ribbon. He smiles, remembering the day, the hour, the people.

Perhaps Randy would be interested in politics. After all, he really understands the Valley and its people. He isn't interested. "The only politics for me is running for the Recreation and Park District Board. We are now the servants of our constituency in the District. I have no other ambitions for public office at this point."

He is impatient with people who do not serve their communities. "Life is good, sure, but you have to get in there and plow that ground and sew that seed before there's a harvest," he says, the smile gone, the mouth a bit tense. "To stand back and see things happen and grumble and not do anything to change them...well, then, what happens is your fault, isn't it?"

The momentary tension disappears and he expands upon his thoughts about community service. "People live here because they like it; the area means something to them," he observes. "They love living in the country—the weather, the clean living with the city conveniences.

"One of the joys of life is getting involved, and I believe in people getting involved," he says, serious again. "I don't mean just opposing some cause; I mean voicing an opinion when favoring a cause. The accomplishment of any task that's undertaken feeds the soul."

Someone calls, and Randy needs to return to business. He rises from the comfortable chair, the old leather apron bound firmly around his body. What about your future, Randy, I ask.

"If conditions don't change," he grins, "I'd like to spend the rest of my life here."

Make sure you do, Randy. The community would be lost without you.

Randy Randazzo talks about the Valley's past and future.

265 Acres Added To Garland Ranch Regional Park

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District closed 1986 with a yearend bargain sale purchase of 265 acres of scenic open space from Mr. Stuyvesant Fish of Carmel. The property is located in Garzas Canyon adjacent to the Garland Ranch Regional Park in Carmel Valley.

At a special meeting held December 29, 1986, the Board of Directors approved the purchase of the 265 acre parcel from Mr. Fish for $125,000. The parcel was valued at $205,000 with the Park District paying $125,000 cash and Mr. Fish giving $80,000 as a charitable contribution to the Park District.

Gary Tate, District Manager, said that the purchase will add ¾ mile of property in Garzas Canyon and scenic ridgeland southwest of Vasquez Knob. It also will provide additional recreational opportunities for hiking and equestrian trail users. The Garland Ranch Regional park, originally 541 acres, now totals over 2,665 acres.

In approving this significant transaction, the Board thanked Mr. Fish for his gracious gift and for making this scenic property available for public use.

Coaches Needed For YMCA Basketball Program

The YMCA of the Monterey Peninsula is still in need of coaches for its Carmel Basketball Program which begins January 10. Although knowledge of the game is preferred, training and guidance are available from qualified players and other coaches.

The 3rd through 8th grade boys and girls will play every Saturday at the Carmel Middle School for the next 8 weeks. Some openings may still be available for youngsters wishing to register in the program.

Please help these young people by calling the YMCA at 363-4167.

Water District Completes Annual Willow Planting

The Water Management District completed its annual willow planting along the Carmel River on December 22. A crew of 12 California Conservation Corps employees brought the willow stems from the Salinas River and planted them over a 10 day period in more than three miles of trenches prepared by Peninsula Septic Tank Service of Carmel Valley.

The planting is intended to check erosion and protect the fishery habitat. Areas planted included Cooper Ranch, the Leoni property at the Scarlet Narrows, Carmel Valley Ranch, up and down stream from Schulte Road bridge, All Saints School, and the Drummond property.

The $15,401 project was paid for by the Carmel River Management Program. The money will be reimbursed by a state grant.

Robert Slimmon Jr., head of the Monterey County Planning Department, will be the guest speaker at the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce Annual installation Dinner at Rancho Canada, January 17. No-host drinks are at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Good Egg Awards also will be given to outstanding citizens of the community.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling Anne Olivier at 659-4000.

Monterey County SPCA Seeks Heroic Animals

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will recognize the outstanding contribution animals make in our lives by presenting THE HEROIC ANIMAL AWARD at its annual meeting, Saturday, March 7, noon, at Rancho Canada in Carmel Valley. Nominations for the award will be accepted now through Friday, February 27.

The award will be presented to a heroic animal in Monterey County for outstanding service or a heroic deed which enhanced the quality of someone's life or somehow aided in preserving the property, health or life of an individual.

To nominate an animal for this award, simply state the facts about the service or deed in a letter, and include your name, address and phone number, as well as any supporting photographs, newspaper articles or documentation available.

Entries should be mailed to: HEROIC ANIMAL, Monterey County SPCA, P.O. Box 3058, Monterey, CA 93942. All entries must be received by Friday, February 27, 1987.

SPCA Annual Meeting Guest Speaker Announced

The Monterey County SPCA will hold its annual meeting on Saturday, March 7, at Rancho Canada in Carmel Valley, with no-host cocktails at 11:30 a.m. and luncheon meeting at noon. Items of business on the agenda include elections to the board and revisions to the by-laws. Reservations may be made by calling 373-2631 or 422-4721 by Monday, March 2.

The featured guest speaker will be Mr. Richard Avanzino, Chief Executive Officer of the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mr. Avanzino, who came to the SF/SPCA in 1976, is responsible for guiding all of its operations, including the Animal Shelter and a comprehensive adoption program; low cost spay-neuter clinic, the SF/SPCA Veterinarian Hospital; an extensive humane education and animal assisted therapy program; an animal behavior hotline; animal rescue, investigation and inspection services; the Society's Pet Grooming College and the SF/SPCA Hearing Dog Training Program. Avanzino also teaches a college level course on animal rights and is featured weekly on a radio program about animals.

Although Mr. Avanzino has a Doctor of Pharmacy degree and a Juris Doctor degree and has practiced both pharmacy and law, he prefers to focus on administrative work with private, non-profit service organizations. Prior to working for the SF/SPCA, he spent seven years as an administrator for the Orange County Health Planning Council and the California Pharmaceutical Association, where he established several precedent-setting programs and published a series of reports identifying service needs and analyzing government policies.

WILDERNESS REPORT

by Glenn R. Stewart
Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary

Howard Elliott wanted to help. He responded to one of our membership drives and began showing up for work parties at the Sanctuary. Along with other volunteers, he and his wife, Elva, regularly pitched in to construct release towers, work on the pioneer road, and revegetate fire scorched areas with native plants that he sprouted at home.

These Peninsula residents now commit weekly trips to the Sanctuary to make necessary improvements to the property. Their volunteer spirit, coupled with their love of wilderness and wildlife, has made them powerful allies to the wildlife preservation programs of Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary.

The Elliotts were joined this past year by a number of other individuals, organizations, and companies. Our organization operates on the generosity and enthusiasm of the community. Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary has been fortunate, indeed. I include a sampling of our volunteers, supporters, and contributors to demonstrate the depth of community commitment and interest that is required to restore endangered species like the bald eagle.

Victory Toyota donated a 1978 Dodge Powerwagon for use by our biologists; Automated Mail Service and Heritage Printers donated a significant portion of their profit margins to do projects for the Sanctuary at generous price reductions. Mr. Norm Spaulding of Artsmiths donates the printing of our newsletter "On the Wild Side..." twice per year.

The Carmel Art Guild recently organized an art and wine benefit for the Sanctuary where Carmel Valley's Chateau Julien, and The Ventana Vineyard, made their wines available for tasting, and several of the artists donated artwork for raffle and silent auction.

Gerry Paddock, Carmel Valley Construction, donated his unique skill to restore our pioneer road after last winter's rains eroded the hillsides in the wake of the Rat Creek fire. Hi-Lifter Water Systems donated half the cost of a state-of-the-art hi-lifter pump that is powered by water pressure, thus eliminating the need for electrical power to move water up the steep hillsides of our remote Big Sur research site. M.J. Murphy Lumber (Carmel Valley) and Hayward Lumber Companies gave us building materials for our hack towers.

Several pilots donated their time and in some cases, airplanes, to help us track the endangered birds of prey that were released during the year. They include Jim Dunn and John Jacobs of Monterey. Dennis Cowan and Grainger Hunt flew out of Redding to assist us in the northern part of the state when our eagle went in that direction.

The California Insurance Group has hosted numerous Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary meetings by making space available to us on a regular basis. The U.C. Santa Cruz Predatory Bird Research Group makes a major contribution to the Sanctuary by donating office space for our day to day administrative work.

Gene Takeshita created a beautiful thank you card, and Bruce Bauer donated photographic works of our endangered birds and the dramatic Sanctuary landscapes. Another artist/friend, Richard Sloan, is painting an eagle in flight over the central coast surf which he has titled "Return to Big Sur." (Limited edition prints of this work will be available for sale in the Spring).

Financial support came from hundreds of loyal Sanctuary members; the Dean Witter Foundation; the National Pro-Am Youth Fund; PG&E; the Helen Brach Foundation; IBM; Monterey Savings; Mrs. Grover M. Hermann; Countryside Estates; the Community Foundation for Monterey County; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott; the Del Monte Dog Show; and the Big Sur Marathon.

This is not a complete list, but I think a representative one that reflects the broad range gifts for which we are thankful. The central coast has been extremely hospitable to us during 1986. We look forward to ambitious programs that, over the next several years, will yield exciting benefits for the community—such as the repatriation of our national symbol, the bald eagle, to our coastline. Thank you for your continued support.

One morning in August following an extremely hot and humid weekend, old Mr. Brown remarked to a friend that he had spent the past two days fishing through the ice.

"Fishing through the ice?" the friend repeated, astonished. "Where and what for?"

"At the club," Mr. Brown replied with a mischievous gleam in his eye. "For olives."

VALLEY VOICES

How will the new tax law affect you and/or your business?

KATHIE MC CRARY, Village Business Service

"I don't know, I'd have to ask my accountant. I've heard that I cannot claim interest anymore, and I will miss that, but I leave it to the experts."

JIM LYLES, Will's Fargo Restaurant

"I wish I were an accountant; at least I'd make some money out of a headache. I don't see how it's going to help the middle classes."

MARION KIMBROUGH, Sales Representative, Carmel Valley Floors

"At the present time, I don't know how it will effect me because I don't know that much about it. I think we'll have to wait and see."

RICHARD SHEA, Valley Studio

"I know it's going to affect me. Instead of being a tax reform, the tax law is just an easier way of increasing taxes without calling it that. I just hope the increased revenues go to lowering our deficit."
